

COMPLIANCE

With a deadline looming for meeting compliance requirements, BAISCA can help school facility administrators quickly gather information and develop concise reports regarding the status of impacted areas in each of their schools.

Case Study: Pre-Kindergarten Classrooms

In August 2011, the North Carolina legislature passed a law requiring all existing Pre-K classrooms in public schools to become licensed through the Division of Child Development and Early Education.

Essentially, classrooms were now required to meet daycare-licensing standards. A one-year transition plan was granted to allow public schools time to evaluate each Pre-K classroom space, and determine any changes that would be necessary to meet the new requirements.

Compliance issues like the legislative changes made for Pre-K classrooms in North Carolina require school administrators to quickly identify each classroom subject to the new requirements and to conduct detailed assessments. By having accurate, updated information district leaders are better prepared to develop communications for government agencies, as well as the Superintendent, The School Board, and the Community..

Consider BAISCA

BAISCA specializes in the collection of data and the development of reports related to facility issues in school districts. Our field technicians will visit each school, or selection of schools, within a district to collect data about a specific building component or issue. A summary report ready for the Board or Leadership Staff is delivered to the district immediately following the collection of field data along with all back up data in electronic format.
